THE BABE RETURNS TO FAYETTEVILLE

On April 5, 1935, a crowd of over 4,000 paid to see Babe Ruth and the Boston Braves play an exhibition game against North Carolina State College at Highland Ball Park. Thousands more were estimated to have witnessed the game. Local businesses ran ads in the Fayetteville Observer promoting the event. Schools and stores closed early to provide a chance to watch the legendary player whose career began in Fayetteville. After the game, the Braves went to the Prince Charles Hotel on Hay Street where Babe Ruth was kept busy signing autographs.

BABE RUTH

The King of Swat

and

The Boston Braves

vs.

N. C. State College

FAYETTEVILLE

FRIDAY

APRIL 5th

HIGHLAND

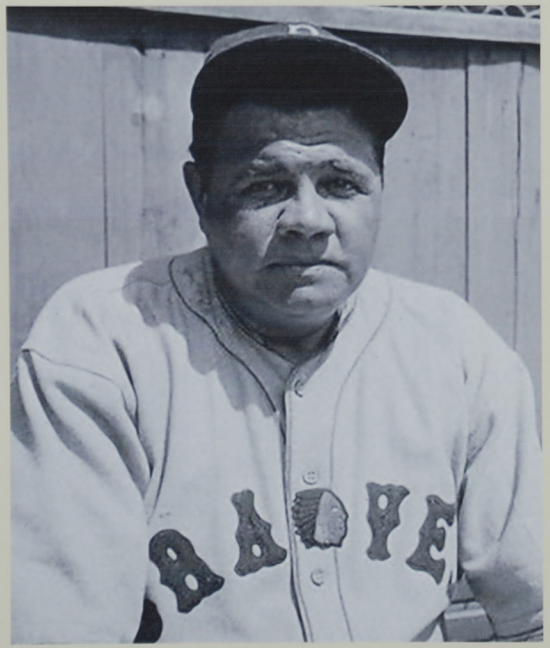
BALL PARK

ADMISSION:

Adults $1, Plus Tax - Children 35¢

TICKETS ON SALE AT ENTRANCE OF PRINCE CHARLES HOTEL

Join The Happy Throng At This Game. Give The "Babe" The Rousing Welcome He Deserves.



4,078 Paid Cash To See Babe Ruth Play

Paid admissions to see Babe Ruth's Boston Braves play the North Carolina State College baseball team here yesterday totalled 4,078, accordsume a sitting position beside home plate with a maximum of speed.

But Babe just smiled.

That was what he did when the

Cape Fear Museum

Fayetteville Area Transportation and Local History Museum